Bradley's Hand Called.
At the Republican State Convention held in Louisville last week, Senator William O. Bradley, who ruled the convention with an iron hand, in referring to the result of the Republican primary held in Illinois, took occasion to defame the name of Hon. John P. Altgeld, who was Democratic Governor of that State in 1894, during the great Pullman strike. Senator Bradley characterized Governor Altgeld as an anarchist. Mr. Frank L. Russell, of this city, who was a warm friend of Governor Altgeld, resented the attacks of Bradley and addressed the following letter in reply to the remarks made against his dead friend:

Richmond, Ky., April 12, 1912
Mr. William O. Bradley, Senator,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR:—
In reading the reports from the Republican State Convention, being held in Louisville, I noticed one statement made by you that should draw the fires of revolt from every individual who admires the truth, decency and fair play. While I have nothing in common with the workings of the Republican party as a political organization, yet when you assail the honored dead and one of the different political faiths, I am going to have something to say in defense of one whose name I reverently cherish in memory and whose works are a monument of everlasting worth and crowning glory. You were reported as saying: "Illinois is the same State that once elected an anarchist—Altgeld for Governor."

Yes; and Kentucky, I am exceedingly sorry to say, is the same State that once disgraced herself by electing an old, Republican reprobate for Governor. Through corruption, fraud, cunning,

BALD HEADS NOT WANTED

Baldness Is Too Generally Considered a Sign of Advanced Age.

A bald-headed person does not have an equal chance with one blessed with a healthy head of hair, because baldness is too generally accepted as an indication of age. Many large corporations have established an age limit, and refuse to take men over 35 years of age as new employees.

Probably 65 per cent. of bald-headed people may regain a good head of healthy hair if they will follow our advice and accept our offer. We have a remedy that we positively guarantee to grow hair on any head, unless the roots of the hair are entirely dead, their follicles closed, and the scalp has become glazed and shiny. We want people to try this remedy at our risk, with the distinct understanding that unless it does exactly what we claim it will, and gives satisfaction in every respect, we shall make no charge for the remedy used during the trial.

We know exactly what we are talking about, and with this offer back of our statements no one should scoff, doubt our word, or hesitate to put our remedy to an actual test.

We want every one in Richmond who is suffering from any scalp or hair trouble, dandruff, falling hair, or baldness to try our Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We want them to use it regularly—say until three bottles have been used—and if it does not eradicate dandruff, cleanse and refresh the scalp, tighten the hair in its roots, and grow new hair, we will return every cent paid us for the remedy for the mere asking. There is no formality expected, and we exact no obligation from the user whatever.

We are established right here in Richmond, and make this offer with a full understanding that our business success entirely depends upon the sort of treatment we accord our customers, and we would not dare make the above offer unless we were positively certain that we could substantiate it in every particular. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store.—The Rexall Store, Perry's Drug Store.

Referendum and the "Call."

Don't understand the initiative, referendum and recall? Let us explain it to you. "Mr. Man goes home and announces that he is going down town after supper to meet a man. That's the initiative. His wife says 'Are you?' in that ascending voice that seems to walk over the roof of her nerves. That's the referendum. Then Mr. Man sits down and reads his paper. That's the recall."

ONE of our most prominent business men called the attention of THE CLIMAX to what seems to have become an almost chronic desire on the part of many of our institutions to be continually solicited funds for one purpose or another. Let it be understood that the gentleman above mentioned is one of Richmond's most exceedingly liberal to the poor and the suffering, to benevolent institutions and to all worthy causes his generosity has been exceeded by few, if any, of our charity-loving people. That his complaint is well founded will be borne out by those engaged in business in Richmond. It has become almost a daily occurrence to have solicitors seeking financial assistance, in many cases for institutions that are supported by taxation, and in some instances for enterprises that are, or should be, self-supporting. The constant drain on the business men of this city as a result has become to many a burden—monotonous to say the least—and this habit should be curtailed where charity is not absolutely necessary. THE CLIMAX would not have any reader to feel that in writing these lines our churches, hospitals, and such institutions are included in the list of those who should not seek and expect aid from the public, for every man should be quick to respond to the ever pressing demands to relieve the needy or suffering.

THE CINCINNATI TRADE EXCURSION, known as the Boosters' Special, will arrive in Richmond Friday afternoon, April 26, about 2:30, and will remain here for one hour. It is especially desired by THE CLIMAX, the Commercial Club and progressive citizens of this city, that a cordial welcome be extended to the visitors while here. Every one that can possibly do so, should turn out and assist in giving the business men of Cincinnati a welcome equally as cordial as was greeted the Agricultural train in this city some weeks ago. A splendid galaxy of speakers has been secured by the Cincinnati Commercial Association, which left Cincinnati Monday morning, April 22nd, to spend the next five days

By order of the British Admiralty divine services on all the warships in home ports last Sunday took the form of a memorial for victims of the Titanic. During the services the flags on all the ships were at half mast in respect to the officers and men of all ranks in the British Mercantile Marine and others who were drowned and for their good seamanship behavior after the accident. Services in all the churches were of a memorial character with the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee" as the special feature.

Mr. Clay Will Probably Move To Lexington.

The following from Lexington to the Louisville Times says: Col. Brutus J. Clay, of Richmond, Ky., former United States Minister to Switzerland, will, if his present plans are carried out, shortly become a resident of this city. Col. Clay recently sold his beautiful farm near Richmond and accompanied by Mrs. Clay was here yesterday looking at a number of places, with the view of purchasing one for a home.

The father of Col. Clay, Gen. Cassius Marcellus Clay, the "Old Lion of Whitehall," formerly resided in Lexington, and was a resident of this city when his paper, The Liberal, which was favorable to abolition, was dramatically suppressed in 1840, as told in Gen. Clay's autobiography. Col. Clay was born in Lexington and has many pleasant recollections of the city, as well as many relatives and friends here, are cited as the chief inducements for his return here to live after so many years absence.

Advice En Route

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Rattling over the frogs and switches, the "Special" picked its way through the yard, while the engineer's hand grasped the throttle nervously. The president of the road, Philip Newman, sat in the rear car, and he had demanded a record run down to the next division. Once past the tangle of tracks, there was a clear road and a good roadbed all the way to Tawara. Thompson usually took the east and west flyer. He was a new engineer on the road and he wanted to show the "Old Man" what he could do.

Back in his private car, Newman was going through the package of mail handed him as he had stepped aboard. It seemed to Newman that since his secretary had quit, the mail had been twice as heavy as formerly. For perhaps half an hour he worked over the mail, then he threw it down his table in disgust, and went out on the rear platform to smoke a cigar in the crisp winter sunshine. As he stepped through the door, a dark bulk suddenly beside the steps caught his eye and he scowled.

He stooped to grasp the man's collar, but before he could do so the man had sprung up and was facing him defiantly.

"Yes, I'm stealing a ride," he admitted before Newman had spoken. "Like you, I am going over the road without a ticket. You can't blame the train for that. They were careful enough, but when they were clear of the yards they had to stay up front or pass through your car, and I knew that they wouldn't do that, so I hopped on board because I want to get away from here."

"Come inside," ordered Newman gruffly as he saw that the man's thin coat and threadbare trousers offered little protection from the biting air. He was rather amused at the idea of a tramp stealing a ride on his own car.

The stranger followed without the least embarrassment, and accepted with easy courtesy the stiff drink that Newman prescribed as an antidote for the cold.

"If I can wash my hands somewhere," the tramp suggested, "the warmth had penetrated his half-frozen body. 'I'll work my passage. I used to be a pretty good hand at the typewriter in the old days. If you have any kind of a typewriter, I'll see to it, I'll clear that away for you. I know how it is when the mail gets piling up.'"

He moved toward the closed typewriter desk at a corner of the saloon and raised the cover. He nodded as he saw the machine was in good condition, and then followed the porter to the wash room whence he emerged with clean hands and face and well-brushed hair. Newman stared at the transformation.

"I'm not a tramp," was the easy explanation. "I am merely out of a job and without a refund to get on another berth. I was unwise in falling in love with my boss's daughter. It was a small town, and he could keep me from getting another place there, so I had to leave."

As he spoke he moved toward the machine again and took up one of the letters in the basket. His fingers fairly flew over the keys and presently a printed sheet of paper came to Newman. It was terse and comprehensive, and Newman nodded. The president reached for the basket and removed a few of the more important letters, then he turned to the tramp.

"Do those," he ordered, "and you will be able to make New York in a day coach instead of a box car."

The letters were out of the way and signed before the train whistled for Newark, and Newman turned to his self-appointed helper.

"Want to go on from the division point or stay on and be my secretary?" he asked.

"I'll stay," was the quick response. "The girl lives in Harmon, and that's only 60 miles from your headquarters. I'll marry her yet."

"That's the way to talk," cried Newman. "If you want a girl, get one, and you get her. You might answer these other letters."

He indicated the more important ones he had withheld until he had studied desk and indicated the rest of the letters. Newman's nimble fingers resumed their work, he smoked and reflected. Here was a man who would not give up and yet he himself had lost heart in his own love affair. He wanted Alicia Leighton for his wife, and he had been frightened off by the rivalry of younger men, though he was little past forty.

"What is your name?" he demanded.

"Paul Sidney," was the quiet response. "I have been working for Seelye & Co. for some time."

Newman drew some bills from his pocketbook.

"There is a half hour stop here," he said. "It is a division point and there are some tangles I must straighten out. Slip up and get a suit that will make you presentable. No, it isn't an advance on salary," he added, as Paul made a memorandum of the sum.

"That is payment for service," and as the surprised stenographer turned away he added to himself, "and you won't be married before I am. I guess I can make a fight too."

Guard Against Undesirables.

About 25,000 immigrants are turned back every year by the Immigration officials of this country to guard the ports and boundaries against those whom the law forbids entry. The government employs nearly 2,000 trained men.

Married

Mr. Robert B. Duerson and Miss Lucy McWilliams were married Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents, near White's Station, Rev. E. C. McDougle, officiating. The happy couple came to this city immediately after the ceremony and took the five o'clock train for a bridal tour, after which they will return to White's Station to reside. The bride and groom are both residents of that section of Madison county, and are exceedingly popular with a large circle of friends who extend congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy married life.

The marriage of Miss Lillian Lee Jefferson to Mr. Salem S. Wallace will be a beautiful event of this month. The marriage will be celebrated to-night at 7:30 o'clock at the First Baptist church, Dr. J. W. Porter officiating. Prof. H. deKrode will play the wedding music and Miss Julia Yarrington will sing. Mrs. William R. Milward, Jr., the matron of honor, will be the bride's only attendant, and Mr. John H. Wallace, of Louisville, the bridegroom's brother, will be best man. Little Miss Emily Holloway will be the flower girl and the ushers will be Messrs. Harry Frances, of Madison county, O. T. Wallace, of Wilmington, N. C., James C. Rucker, and John Wilkin, of this city. After the wedding the couple will leave for a wedding trip of several weeks and will then return to Lexington and make their home with the bride's mother, Mrs. Thomas Clay Jefferson, on Forest avenue—Lexington Herald.

Mr. Wallace is well known in Richmond, having many relatives in the city and county, where he has frequently visited.

EVERY MOVE CREATES SOUND

Scientific Fact Not Known to Most Acuteness of Hearing Among the Lower Animals.

It is very difficult to make some persons believe that nothing can move without making a sound, although it may seem to be absolute silence to them. Everything that moves disturbs the air around it and sets up a kind of wave motion that spreads through the atmosphere in all directions. When these wave motions are strong enough a sound is heard. That nothing is heard is no evidence that there is no sound, for other living things may hear what men cannot.

The motion that is started in the air when anything vibrates or moves suddenly has often been compared to the motion of the surface of still water when we drop a pebble into a pond. But there is this great difference. The eyes can see the waves made by the smallest glass bead you can find, but the ear is not nearly so sensitive, and unless the waves are pretty high in the atmosphere the human ear cannot detect their sound.

The lower animals and birds have much better ears than human beings. A dog will prick up its ears at the sound of its master's voice, or a faint whistle, when it is an astonishing distance off. A man in Baltimore put his head out of the window and called his dog Jack, which he thought was chasing cats in the grounds of the blind asylum opposite.

A deer has been known to look up at the sound of a footstep that was still half a mile away in the woods.

Gave Up Hope

"I suffered five years, with awful pains, due to womanly troubles," writes Mrs. M. D. McPherson, from Chadbourn, N. C. "They grew worse, till I would often faint. I could not walk at all, and I had an awful hurting in my side; also a headache and a backache."

I gave up and thought I would die, but my husband urged me to try Cardui, so, I began, and the first bottle helped me. By the time the third bottle was used, I could do all my work. All the people around here said I would die, but Cardui relieved me."

TAKE The CARDUI Woman's Tonic

For more than 50 years, Cardui has been relieving woman's sufferings, and making weak women strong and well. During this time, thousands of women have written, like Mrs. McPherson, to tell of the really surprising results they obtained by the use of this purely vegetable, tonic remedy for women.

Cardui strengthens, builds, restores, and relieves or prevents unnecessary pain and suffering from womanly troubles. If you are a woman, begin taking Cardui, today.

STAKED

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

"She can't stay here." "Let's eyes flashed ominously. Standing in the low doorway of the little shack, half way up Sawtooth mountain, she stared at the shabby yellow carriage, with its team of lean, shaggy horses.

"Then where is she going to stay, I'd like to know?" ejaculated the driver, hoarsely. "She's bound for here, and she's paid her way here, and she's sick, too, and she tells me Jim sent for her. You lend a hand here, like a good fellow, and help me get her out."

"Nobody's home but me." "Then you're boss, ain't you? And what you got to go?" He grinned up at her comfortably. "She's temper was familiar to him. 'She's got to rest up some place, and it's thirty miles back to Double Forks.'"

"Ask her," said Wilkins. "Most begrudgingly Jim did the honors of her home to the half-unconscious stranger. She helped carry her into the kitchen, and loosened her many wraps. She made strong coffee, and winced a little from her own bitterness when she saw how young and what you're going to do." He turned to the man who was already down.

After the man from Double Forks had driven away, she went silently about her work, while the other woman lay on the bed and watched her. Finally Jet spoke.

"Well, you got here, didn't you?" "I came as soon as ever I could." "Yes, you did!" "I did. I started the day after he-by-me."

"What baby?" "Why, yours, mine and Jim's." "A pause. Jet looked at the woman who had been so swiftly and surely slapped her in her pretty, aggressive face.

"You knew I had a baby, didn't you? I wrote to Jim, and he ought to have told you that much. I guess he didn't care, anyhow."

"No, he didn't tell me." Jet sat down opposite the bed.

"When did you tell him about the other--the baby?" asked Jet slowly.

"Not right away. He wrote back he'd try to send for us both, and to name it after him if it was a boy."

"Maybe he meant to." Jet walked to the door and looked out. A year and a half she had lived down at Double Forks, running a miners' boarding house. She was thirty, and fairly about to get married. Her husband had followed gold strikes in Nevada for years. And she had loved him wholeheartedly until Jim Barker came.

"He got hurt last month. They had to take him up to Trent, where the company's doctor is. He works for the Kay-Alian outfit, foreman. Your father, I wrote to him, and he was so I opened and read it. They said he might die, and I sent you the money to come on quick, to get here and see him. So long as you was his wife, he had a right to be in at the finish."

The other woman was out of the bed before the words were fairly out of Jet's mouth, awaying slightly, she caught Jet's willing hand for support.

"But he isn't dead, is he?" "What do you care?" Jet looked at her curiously. "You were married to him, weren't you?" "Yes, I was. And then he left you. I always liked Jim, and I hoped all along something might happen so we could get married, and swing up further north into some of the provinces and start all fresh again."

"I want you to know everything first." Jet rose slowly, and crossed the floor of the two-room shack. "He's in yonder. They brought him up here because it's his place. He's alive, but he'll never get well again. The company's given him a pension, so he won't starve."

She took a hat from a nail, put it on her head with a yank forward. "Go on in and say hello. I'm going away now. Where's the baby?" "With my mother--home. It's a boy."

"And named Jim?" she said, carelessly. "There's some money in his room there, in a little buckskin sack under the pillow. It's his, so you take it. Good-bye. I won't tell him I sent after you. Men don't have to know everything, you know."

"Listen, you mother of Jim's baby! I meant to jump your claim. And I couldn't. It was all nicely staked out and named. He won't tell me you had better pie than mine. Your picture's in the inside pocket of that coat, and a long curl of hair around it. Don't you worry. You send for the baby quick and call this home. So long."

She stopped at a sound from the other room, the sound of some one waking, stretching, tiredly on a creaky bed, sighing and turning and lying to himself at pain. Then they heard him call peevishly, longingly: "Anybody out there?"

Jet shrugged her shoulders, and smiled, and walked out of the shack, shutting the door after her softly. She could hear Jim's laugh as she went down after her pony. The staked claim was proved up now.

No Excuse This Time.

The Democratic wool bill of last year proposed a reduction of 50 per cent. in the tariff rates on wool, and it passed the House by a vote of 221 to 100. The same bill has again passed the House, this time by a vote of 189 to 92.

When he vetoed the bill last year President Taft gave as his reason the fact that the tariff board had not made its report. Now, in the light of the tariff board's report, the Republicans of the House propose a wool bill calling for a reduction of 40 per cent. in Schedule K, or just two per cent less than the bill which the president vetoed.

The tariff board, therefore, vindicates the Democratic position on wool, if such vindication were necessary. The Democrats knew, long before the tariff board was created, that the wool rates were too high, and the President knew it also, for in his speech at Winona, Minn., he characterized the Payne-Aldrich wool tariff rate as indefensible.

As things now stand, neither the president nor the high protectionists will have any excuse for opposing the present bill, and if any of them do stand in the way of its final passage, they will convict themselves of trying to grant a special privilege, namely, the privilege of robbing the consumer, to the trust millionaires.

REALLY NOT SMITH'S FAULT

Mrs. Commuter Had Blamed Him Unduly, and Now She Wants the Law Changed.

Even in town the commuter's wife had been subject to violent likes and dislikes, but in the suburbs her prejudice seemed intensified. Their neighbor on the left was the object of her sincerest aversion. "I think he is the most selfish man I ever met," she said. "Such a contrast to Mr. Brown, on our right, who is the soul of neighborly kindness."

"On what do you base your estimate of their character?" her husband asked. "Fences," said she. "Just look at the ugly posts and crossbars on his own side and has presented the most filthy surface to us. But you don't catch Mr. Smith doing that. No, indeed. He looks out for number one and keeps the nice side for the neighbors while we get all the rough patchwork."

"But that is not Smith's fence," her husband argued. "It is ours." "Ours?" she echoed. "How does that happen?"

"It happens through a legal statute which provides that every man who wants his property fenced in must build part of the fence and keep the rest up to what he meant by his action, and this is what he had to say in answer to the question propounded to him: 'My brudders, you have seen these great pickets, I suppose, so you know that the great Shepherd is always pictured with a lamb of his flock in his arms.'"

"Yes, said, parson, dat am so," admitted Deacon Jones.

"Den, Brudder Jones, what am wrong in the shepherd of his flock holding a lamb in his arms?"

This was too much for Brudder Jones, so he proposed the officers of the church to call a meeting that afternoon. After the point was discussed fully the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, Dat for the future peace and dignity of the congregation dat the next time Parson Henderson feels called upon to take a lamb of his flock in his arms, dat he pick out a ram lamb."

Truly a "Nervy" Youth.

A New York barber says he has discovered the nerviest man alive. He is young yet, but when he is fully developed with a mature growth of nerve he will be a startling prodigy.

"The fellow came into my shop the other day," said the barber, "and asked me to shave his neck. I speedily accomplished the gentle task, and called out, 'Next.' While I was adjusting a towel around the neck of the next customer I saw the other youth going out the door.

"Haven't you forgotten something?" I asked him.

"I felt in my pockets and said he had all that belonged to him."

"I mean you forgot to pay me for that shave."

"I pay for that! Just shaving my neck!" he said, with astonishment. "I never heard of paying for so little a thing as that. I could have done it myself with my safety razor, only I couldn't reach back there."

No Occasion for Surprise.

This story is told of Forrest, the great tragedian:

Forrest was playing in "Richard III." and the part of Catesby had to be taken by a low comedian, who snatched on the stage at the wrong moment and uttered the famous words, "My lord, the duke of Buckingham is taken," in the wrong place.

Forrest clenched his fists in rage, but otherwise took no notice of the remark.

Later on the comedian repeated the words in the right place, and when the king expressed surprise at the news Catesby folded his arms, walked boldly down the stage, and remarked to the great actor in loud tones:

"I told you so before, Mr. Forrest, but you wouldn't believe me."

How China Lives.

No natural resource is too trifling to be turned to account by the teeming population. The sea is raked and strained for edible plunder. Seaweed and kelp have a place in the larder. Great quantities of shell fish, no bigger than one's finger nail, are opened and made to yield a food that finds its way far inland. The fungus that springs up in the grass after a rain is eaten. Fried sweet potato vines furnish the poor man's steak. The roadside ditches are bailed out for the sake of fishes no longer than one's finger.

It is your duty to yourselves as taxpayers to know positively which one of the candidates for the nomination for County Attorney will give the best service for the money paid him. Young Men Cannot Be Correctly Fitted In Older Men's Suits

The young fellow from nineteen to twenty-five who wears, we will say, a size thirty-six coat, cannot be correctly fitted in the same size designed for an older man. The young man is built on different lines; his figure has not filled out and assumed the older man's form; his proportions are not what they will be a few years later; and, therefore, he requires clothing especially designed for men of his age.

We recognize this important fact, and buy young men's clothing from makers who specialize this class of manufacture, and who have become experts in their specialty.

Our showing of

Prof. Bridges Didn't Answer.

Superintendent Bridges announced in chapel last week that he would give a penny to the boy who would ask a question he could not answer. Several tried unsuccessfully until one boy asked him, "Please, sir, if you stood up to your neck in soft mud and I threw a stone at your head, would you duck?" The question remained unanswered.

Big Price For Cattle.

L. P. Yandell, of Boyle county, on Saturday, sold 79 head of fat cattle to Simon Wall, of Lexington, at the record price for Kentucky. The price for the entire bunch was $7.40 per hundred. The cattle will average about 1250 pounds. Fat cattle are commanding high prices, but the honor of getting the highest price paid in Kentucky in many years, goes to Mr. Yandell—Harrisburg Herald.

Big Jew Fish.

A mammoth jew fish, so-called, 325 pounds weight, nearly seven feet long, and with girth nearly five feet, was caught last night at Coronado Beach, this county, by John Harris, of Richmond, Ky., Charles Slavin, Nicholas, and Mr. Gray, of Coronado. Con Taylor, of Richmond, Ky., bossed the job and took a picture of the brute. Con is another fellow whose fish stories won't be believed without a photographic witness.—The DeLand (Fla.) Register.

Immense Sale.

Mr. W. F. Higgins, who advertised in THE CLIMAX a special of rocking chairs for last Saturday informs us that he sold every chair and could have sold many more, had he anticipated such a demand. He provided for the occasion what he thought to be a large stock, but his advertisement in these columns had been read by housekeepers of Madison and they took advantage of the reduced sale and purchased his entire stock of fifty chairs. Mr. Higgins' advertisement appears in these columns weekly and many bargains are offered in the furniture line.

The exercises will be held in their lodge room on East Main street and addresses will be made by the following speakers: Supt. John Noland, Judge H. C. Rice, Messrs. Jesse Cobb, C. C. Wallace, R. J. Jett, and Mrs. A. T. Million. Judge N. B. Turpin will read a history of Madison Lodge. Every member of the lodge is earnestly requested to be present on this occasion. Supper will be served under the auspices of Rebecca Lodge.

National Honors.

Dr. Crabbe, President of State Normal, has been significantly honored by being placed on the program of the Normal School Department of the National Educational Association. He will speak on "Securing and Maintaining Efficiency in the Teaching Force of a Normal School." The annual meeting is to be held in Chicago, July 6-12. Thousands of the leading educators of all the States of the United States, will gather in this great convention.

No Extra Session To Enact Presidential Primary Law

Chances for an extra session of the Legislature to amend the State primary law so as to provide for presidential primaries are slim. The bill introduced by the State is very remote. Gov. McCreary said that he had not been requested by anybody to call an extra session for this purpose, and that he had not considered any such action. It is believed to be reasonably certain that there will not be an extra session as there is hardly time enough to have a session of the Legislature, amend the law, and then hold a presidential conference primary before the national convention is held in Baltimore. Unless it can be held at the expense of the State, it is believed no primary will be held, as the candidates probably would not be willing to bear the expense of a primary, costing, as it would, more than $25,000. The leaders of the Wilson forces in Kentucky have talked of a primary, and Ollie M. James, for the Clark forces, has expressed a willingness to hold a primary to select the delegates to the National Democratic Convention. At the recent session, the House refused to pass the primary bill a section providing preference primaries, and it is believed that it would be difficult, if possible, to pass a law putting the selection of presidential delegates under the operation of the primary law.

"Greater Love Hath No Man Than This—that a man lay down his life"—For Womanhood.

The dreadful calamity which befell the Titanic, in which sixteen hundred lives were sacrificed, stand today without a parallel in the annals of sea disasters. Courage, the test of manhood; defense, the test of friendship; self-sacrifice, the test of love, and death, the test of loyalty, were all exemplified when the powerful ship of the White Star Line sank to the bottom of the Atlantic. Seven hundred and some souls were saved from the cruel waves, mostly women and children, and these testify to the courage and self-sacrifice of the noble men who shouted, when the ill-fated steamer was known to be lost, the command: "Women and children first!" These orders were obeyed and as a result practically all of the women and children survive. Those women who sleep today beneath the icy waters of the Atlantic do so as matter of devoting and loyalty to loved ones whom they would not desert, having shared the joys of life together sought death in its cruel form rather than separation. Mr. and Mrs. Straus, with arms about each other, waiting the end they had chosen to meet as they had lived together; Col. Astor, who, just a short while ago, was the object of bitter denunciation, assisting women and children and bravely cheering them, quietly waiting the inevitable; Major Butt, American soldier, resolute, calm and deliberate, faced death with a smile that those of the weaker sex should not perish, and gave his own life as a chivalrous act for the women and children of the Titanic. Many others of the fabled steamer displayed the same stoicism and deserve the reverence and admiration to which every true man should bow. Whatever the cause of the disaster it is said in behalf of those who choose death preferable to jeopardizing the avenues of escape for women and children, that the memory of their chivalry will be recorded on the pages of history and coming generations will learn a lesson of devotion and self-sacrifice that will be invaluable to the uplift and manhood of the entire world. Those who sought places of safety, regardless of the women and children, will reap the denunciation which they deserve, and their memories, unlike those heroes above, will fade, and the fingers of scorn will follow them through life and in the end death will take from public view the forms which roamed the earth in the shape of man. Peace to the memory of those great last men whose pillow is the frozen depths of the Atlantic, yet the heart beats of every American citizen is a pulsation of love and devotion to the loyalty of these heroes, whose sacrifice will live to emblazon pages in history and appear on the everlasting scroll.

Deaths

Mrs. Joe Grimes, aged about thirty-five years, died Thursday at her home, near Edenton, after a short illness. Deceased is survived by a husband and three children, the youngest only a few days old. Mrs. Grimes was a very popular and lovable woman and her funeral services were attended by a large concourse of friends and loved ones, the procession to the grave being pronounced by those present to have been the largest ever seen in that part of the county. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Green Stocker, after which her remains were laid to rest in the family graveyard, near Edenton.

At the hour of going to press news reached Richmond of the death in Lexington of Mrs. William McCord, who passed away suddenly of paralysis in this city and county, especially so, since her venerable husband died only a few months ago and the wound caused by his taking away is still fresh in the hearts of loved ones. Art Exhibition Proved A Success.

The art exhibition at the Caldwell High School from April 18 to 20, proved a success in every way. The pictures on exhibition were beautiful copies of the great paintings of the world, the musical and literary programs were carried out, the display of the manual training department of the Caldwell High School was most creditable, and a handsome sum was realized from paid admissions and private donations. Enough money was obtained to purchase a good picture and frame for each of the rooms, and five large pictures for the chapel, all costing more than one hundred dollars. Besides many contributions of small amounts, the following donations were made by the citizens and business firms of the city:

THE CLIMAX	86 00

Base Ball Season Opens Next Wednesday.

The first game of the Blue Grass Base Ball League will be played at Pioneer Park next Wednesday afternoon. Great preparations are being made for the occasion when the Pioneers will cross bats with the swift aggregation of ball tossers from Frankfort. Governor McCreary has signified his intention to be present on that day and will possibly pitch the first ball of the season. The largest crowd since the organization of the base ball association is expected to be present and root for the home team. Practice work has been somewhat retarded on the account of the continued rains, but Richmond boys have had considerable work and will be in good condition by the date set for the opening game. Let every body put aside business for a few hours and attend the game on May 1. The schedule for the league was released by President Neal, on Monday and will be published in these columns next week, space forbidding its reproduction in this issue.

Judge Sullivan's Views.

Under the above caption, the Frankfort News-Journal says: "Judge Jere A. Sullivan, of Richmond, after a couple of days' stay in Louisville, came to Frankfort yesterday. When asked his preference in the Democratic presidential race, Judge Sullivan replied that he started out for Gov. Wilson, then took on Gov. Harmon, and had finally come to the conclusion that Speaker Champ Clark was the most available candidate the Democrats could put up to weld together all the elements of the party. He said, however, that he was not yet irrevocably committed to the Clark candidacy. Judge Sullivan has just returned from a three weeks' stay in New York. He said he found Democratic sentiment there for Harmon first, Underwood second, and Clark third. He said he found the Republicans to whom he talked, almost solidly arrayed against Roosevelt."

Eastern Notes.

Our State Educational Association, the K. E. A., will be held in Louisville June 25-27. The headquarters of Eastern State Normal will be opened in Louisville Hotel. All students and former students, faculty and friends will have a great reunion here. Dr. Crabbe has been invited to open the convention with an address on the theme "The Teacher and the State."

The first day of May will be Hospitality Day at Eastern. On that day the school wishes to entertain its interested friends and well-wishers and demonstrate to them the quality of work that is being done there. The program will begin at 8:30 a. m. and continue through the day and evening. There will be exhibitions by the various grades and departments, music by the chorus club and a May-pole dance. The feature of the day will be the picnic dinner served to all on the grounds, if the weather be propitious and in the gymnasium if it be cold or rainy. A cordial invitation is hereby issued to everybody who is interested in the school, both patrons and friends, to come with the children and spend the day with us. Those desiring to bring baskets are privileged to do so, but this is not necessary as the school will be prepared to serve everybody who may come. At 3:30 the Eastern Ball team will line up against the Millersburg Military Institute. Both teams are playing splendid ball this season and an excellent game is assured.

Ralph Parlette, the Orator of Good Cheer, will speak at the chapel on Thursday evening, May 2, at 8 o'clock. The subject will be "Pockets and Paradise." In this lecture the richest man in the world tells what he owns and how he got it. Mr. Parlette is a man with a message. The public is cordially invited to attend. The number is free, complimentary in honor of our visiting superintendents.

Poultry Fanciers to Meet in This City.

A meeting has been called by the poultry fanciers of this city, to be held in the office of the Blue Grass Real Estate Co., at 10 o'clock on Thursday, May 2. The object of this meeting is to reorganize and elect officers for the ensuing year, and to make preparations for the annual poultry exhibition in this city next December. The great success of the poultry show here last fall has been an incentive to those interested to make greater efforts to eclipse, in every way, the splendid display of the first annual Madison County Poultry Show. Members of the association and all interested in poultry, should make a sacrifice, if necessary, to attend the above meeting.

Oratorical Contest.

The third annual oratorical contest of the Inter-Collegiate Prohibition Association of Kentucky, was held at the Normal Chapel, this city, Tuesday evening. E. E. Gabbard, representing Berea College, was awarded first prize of $50. His subject was, "The Problem of Problems." Second prize of $10 was given to H. B. The Imperial Double Disc Harrow

The forward sections cut the ground and throw it outward. The rear sections work it again and throw it back to its original position. The ground is leveled and pulverized and left in perfect condition for seeding. Once over the field with an Imperial Double Disc does as much work as twice over with a Single Disc, and does it more thoroughly. The time and expense of discing is reduced one-half.
An ordinary Disc Harrow of six or seven foot cut is generally used with three horses. An Imperial Double Disc of the same width of cut requires only four. The saving of horse power is accomplished.
First, by the form of the machine. The double action of the two harrows, one attached to and immediately following the other, requires much less than the power of two separate harrows.
Second, by the shape of the blades. The scalloped blades, though better pulverizers than solid blades, have less bearing service against the surface they move and consequently have less draft.

The Proof is in Richmond Almost at Your Door.

The public statement of a Richmond citizen is in itself strong proof for Richmond people, but confirmation strengthens the evidence.

Here is a Richmond citizen who testified years ago that Doan's Kidney Pills relieved weak kidneys and now states the result was permanent. Can any sufferer from kidney ills ask better proof? You can investigate. The case is right at home.

Mollie Powers, 209 Hallie-Irvine St., Richmond, Ky., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills certainly are good and I gladly confirm the testimonial I gave in 1905 recommending them. They cured me of a severe case of kidney trouble. I suffered almost constantly for seven years from kidney trouble and could not get any relief until I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Middleton's Drug Store. This remedy quickly corrected my trouble and it has never returned."

Bad Laws.

According to the present law Clark county pays nothing toward maintaining the street or pikes within the city limits of Winchester, although the city is a heavy payer toward county taxes. Notwithstanding this fact the town people are taxed additionally a sum sufficient to maintain all roads in the town used for public travel. The county should pay a reasonable percentage of the cost of maintaining the highways in the city, because the city pays taxes on over five million dollars, costing the people a great deal of which goes to maintaining the highways outside the city limits. The next Senator from this district and the representative from Clark will be asked to offer a bill, whereby a law may be passed distributing the funds justly.—Winchester Democrat.
